Phillies Win Double Header. Phillies Win Double Header, Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Philadelphia again won a double header from Pittsburgh today, the scores being 3 to 0 and 7 to 3. Jacobs, who was knocked off the rubber yesterday, met a similar fate in the first game today, while Bender was in wonderful form and held his opponents to three singies. Paskert was put off the field for kicking when called out on strikes.
In the second game Carlson was hit

BAGBY'S SKILL LIES

"Jim and I are old yall and one mer teammates, you know. Well, one hot day down in New Orleans I was and Bagby cenplaying second base and Bagby cen-ter field. We both chased after a short fly ball Bagby stretched out his hand to make the catch and I bump-ed into him. Hi right hand landed in the middle of my back and, of course, the ball dropped safe. After the collision Jim said there was some-thing the matter with his wrist. He had to quit the game, and when a had to quit the game, and when a physician had made an examination it was discovered that the large bone had been fractured just above the

"When Bagby's arm was able to stand the strain he began pitching and in a short time it was apparent to everybody that he had more stuff than ever bofore. I made a great pitcher out of Bagby when I broke his arm. If you don't believe me, ask Jim himself."

his arm. If you don't believe me, ask Jim himself."

Bagby was, of course, interviewed for a verification of this statement and admitted everything except that the broken arm made him a better pitcher. "I always could pitch and knew that some day I'd be heard from, but I'll never forget that game if I live to be a million," Bagby said. "It was on July 17, 1913, in New Orleans. I happened to be playing center field and, as Hendryx says, we both chased and, as Hendryx says, we both chased after a short fly. The only difference in Tim's story and the true facts is, that instead of my right hand coming in contact with his back it landed on his head."

So Says Tom Hendryx, a Former Teammate.

Teammate.

Did you ever hear of a ball player breaking his arm and then jumping from the ordinary class to a star is as possible. It is not may purpose to justify my appointment. That task is for Mr. Dreyfus to do. But as I have been asked to state my managerial policies in so far as I have formed them, I shall endeavor to do so as briefly and distinct-breaking his arm and then jumping from the ordinary class to a star pitcher? No, you probably never heard of such a thing, yet this is exactly what happened to Jim Bagby in 1913, and at present Sergeant Jim is Cleveland's leading moundman.

The accident to Bagby was described by Tim Hendryx of the New York Yankees.

"If it hadn't been for me, Bagby feel the intense practical application and always will be. I love sport, feel the intense practical application and always will be. Yankees.
"If it hadn't been for me, Bagby would never have been hearl of as a pitcher," announced Tim.
"Jim and I are old pals and for"Jim and I are old pals and fortion with sport during the most crit-ical time in this nation's life.

Sport is as much a vital necessity to any nation as education itself. In En-gland, football, and to a certain de-gree cricket are the nation games. Here baseball is supreme.

I have been interested in sport ever since I was eight years old. My interest centred primarily in football which I played for four years and thoroughly enjoyed. But I have also been interested in boxing and wrestling and in baseball.

Athletic sport, to me, is one of the fundamental things, the important things, which we cannot do without

Athletic sport, to me, is one of the fundamental things, the important things which we cannot do without. The nations which have no athletic sports, if there are any such, are certain to be flabby of muscle and purages a healthy physique as sport and health is the foundation of national welfare. In time of war, especially, is this the case. Strength is the foundation of the army, health a vital necessity. Never before has baseball been so valuable a national asset. Never before has it been called upon to play so important a role. Without ranting or posing or indulging in anything that might be called hot air, I firmly and thoroughly believe that athletic sport thoroughly believe that athletic sport offers as wholesome and useful a field for a young man's best endeavors as any other business pursuit or profession of which I have knowledge.

There are certain fundamental rules underlying all snort Baseball is not that instead of my right hand coming in contact with his back it landed on his head."

To look at Eagby's right arm one would hardly suspect him of being a pitcher. His arm is long, thin, slengher and the muscles soft and pliable.

How I Became the Newest Manager By Hugo Bezdek.

Who is Hugo Bezdek is the title of an article in the September Baseball Magazine. The article goes on to say, "Bezdek is a Bohemian, a graduate of the University of Chicago. . He uses faultless English, has a good command of French, is equally proficient in Bohemian and converses readily in Russian. While at Chicago he specialized in chemistry and has a good working knowledge of medicine. The article continued to many proportion of which I have knowledge. There are certain fundamental rules underlying all sport. Baseball is no exception. Treat a man fairly and usually he will do the same by you. Bustley how will take advantage of your justice. A manager must sometimes rule certain types of players with a firm hand but there is never a time when he needs to be a buily. If he thinks he does need to resort to such tactics he will find the fault in himself rather than his men. Criticism is always necessary but it should rarely be destructive. Constructive advice is what most players need and profit by. It is certainly better to rouse a player's interest and enthusiasm by friendly suggestion than to fire his resentment and promote a disposition to shirk by riding him.

No high order of intelligence is needed to disclose the fact that Pittsburg is not the strongest club in the league. But I am well pleased with the boys. I am convinced of their converted to the same of the future. I can make no predictions, would make none if I were certain in my own mind of the results. But our output other better known possibilities than club will be out there playing, a
